General

I strive to provide accurate information on this site, but I cannot guarantee it is free from errors or omissions, or that it suits your specific needs. It's best to seek independent advice before relying on any content available. I am not responsible for any loss or damage you might suffer due to errors, omissions, or misrepresentations in the content.

Our products and services are only available to Australian residents for properties in Australia. We do not accept applications from non-residents. The information on this site is designed for use under Australian law and may not comply with the laws of other countries. It is not intended for use outside Australia. The content is current at the time of publication but may change.

Any advice on this website has not taken your personal goals, financial situation, or needs into account. Consider whether the advice is suitable for your circumstances before acting on it.

Note: The home loan with the lowest interest rate may not be the best for your situation. You might not qualify for that product, and not all products are available in every state and territory.

Social Media

The information I share in my social media posts and comments is general advice only. It does not consider your specific goals, financial situation, or needs. Before acting on this advice, think about whether it suits your own circumstances.

How I Get Paid

I do not charge a fee for my services as the lenders pays commission. This allows you to benefit from our expertise without any cost, saving you time and effort in finding the right home loan. The commission I receive will be detailed in the Preliminary Assessment and Proposal document we provide before you apply for finance.
